

Requests for assistance

The knowledge produced by the research is relevant for judicial reform. IRSiG's researchers are often invited to share their findings at international judicial reform conferences, and are involved as technical advisors in reform programmes promoted by international organizations. IRSiG's researchers have worked with the OSCE in Albania to evaluate the quality of service perceived by users of the judicial system, with GIZ in Ghana and Kenya for the development of systems of judicial performance evaluation systems, with various bodies of the Council of Europe - primarily the CEPEJ - to support of reform processes in Bulgaria, Georgia, Turkey, Jordan, as well as for the preparation of specific studies. IRSiG's researchers have also collaborated on several projects promoted by the UNODC and in particular on the drafting of the " Resource guide for strengthening Judicial Integrity and Capacity".
